We are living in a world of relentless change, especially at an organisational level. With this rapid change personal productivity has become a strategic and operational priority for businesses at a time when many of its people are already struggling to overcome their weakening capacity to cope with a mounting workload.

To resolve this; help people 'make what matters happen' more often, get them out of their own way and create more flow in how they work will result in sustainably accelerating their achievements, increasing their personal and organisational productivity. The happy coincidence being greater engagement, personal satisfaction and reduction of negative stress.

This new thought provoking, challenging and personalised one day programme will help your people transform their productivity, motivating new levels of discretionary effort in authenticating their achievements, giving them the resilience needed when faced with challenges and setbacks.

Is there a need for your people to achieve more with less?

Does what matter happen in your organisation?

Do your people tend to get in their own way?

By the end of the day they will be:

- Aware as to the reality of their own perceptions and the impact this has on their personal productivity.
- Narrowing the gap between their personal aspirations and achievements.
- Understanding the connection between their daily choices and the consequences they experience.
- Growing time by 'getting out of their own way' in how they make things happen.
- Increasing their energy levels by making intelligent substitutions.
- Using 'Nudge' reminders and 'Self Coaching Questions' to gain absolute clarity on priorities and actions.

Why do some people achieve, and others don't?

Top quartile achievers primarily achieve due to an unconscious competence in being authentically motivated to focus their performance on the delivery of their priority outcomes. In recognising this and gaining greater awareness of the consequences from their day to day choices they will be able to realign themselves to make what matters happen more often.

What is Alignment?

Exploring how to seize control in a world that is speeding up through greater understanding of the positive impact and workflow created, through the convergence of 4 key elements to personal achievement – Clarity, Motivation, Taskstyle and Energy.

Gaining Clarity on the reality

With the constant pressure to achieve more with less, they will focus on making choices based on the reality of their discretionary time using tried and tested tools to convert organisational needs into manageable actions and tasks enabling intelligent substitution and embedded prioritisation.

The reason why anything matters

Personal success is about getting what you want, but happiness is about enjoying what you have got. There is a uniqueness in what motivates each of us to perform, by recognising and examining their own motivators it will greatly increase their ability to achieve, exceed their own expectations and sustain the resulting change.

What is Taskstyle?

Taskstyle is the, often unconscious, way in which we execute tasks...our habits, assessment results will provide insight into their current Taskstyle and how they may be preventing themselves from achieving by getting in their own way. With the introduction of Nudges, they will be able to influence their future ways of working and the speed of delivering their desired outcomes.

The part Energy plays

Energy is our greatest personal enabler, by making the connection between how they feel, the choices they make and their subsequent consequences they will start to recognise how they currently de-energise themselves. By making practical personal changes – 'the one best way for them' they will become more aligned in what they do, how they work and feel.
